The loopy sum-product (SP) algorithm is an efficient technique for computing marginals of joint distributions. The performance of SP is not completely understood. In this talk we will extend our previously introduced Gibbs measure formulation. We present new sufficient conditions for convergence of SP. Then we discuss robustness of SP with respect to misspecified potentials and noisy messages.